

London, London

by Cynthia Marton, 6a

How could we ever forget you
You're worth being seen, bewitching a bunch of young people
Flying in with a lot of laughter and expectations.

London, London

Putting our toes on your soil, many of us were so fascinated
By your subways, others by your amazingly complicated
Train and tube system.

Oh London, London

Fortunately, we finally managed to reach the youth hostel
Although your drivers are so criminal as we experienced
When crossing just a simple little street.

London, London

In the evening you let us dine in one of your nice traditional pubs
And discover your impressive Piccadilly Circus on our own.

Oh London!

With you we could see what nobody would think exists
Bubbling rainbow-coloured drinks, the whole of China in four streets
And some interesting pleasures exclusively for men.

London, London

You made us fall into bed every night
But we wanted to see more.

Oh London

So you enchanted us with amazing Big Ben, Buckingham Palace
And the Changing of the Guards, too, though people
Who are not blessed with tallness were not very lucky!

But London, oh London

When we entered your Tower, we all felt overwhelmed
Especially by your torture chambers
But also by your dazzling precious Crown Jewels.

And London

How could we forget you, the home of the famous poet
That led us into a forgotten world full of poetry but also into The centre of modern art, Tate Modern.

And one evening, London, you taught us in a musical

That you're "like Marilyn Monroe" or that you're able To imitate that German animal Adolf very well.

The very last day in London

Was a cultural explosion of all kinds of food,
Clothes and many more things at Camden Market.

So London

Place of self-effacing at the supermarket, coma-shopping

"Mind the gap"s in the underground jungle climate

Hidden letters, afternoon tea with Sherlock, unusual encounters on London Bridge, Indian-Chinese-African people, superstar tube musicians, mean doormen, boxershort-boy-waiting-alone-in-front-of-his-closed-youth-hostel-room, space-soldiers-captivating-innocent-Swiss-students, M&M paradise and lots more.

No, we won't forget you, oh London!
